Castleberry's expands voluntary recall of hot dog chili sauce and canned meat products

The Castleberry's Food Company's voluntary food recall originally announced on July 18 has been expanded due to the risk of exposure to botulinum toxin, which can cause botulism.

No new cases have been reported since the original four cases were announced last week. Two children in Texas and an Indiana couple who ate these products became seriously ill and have been hospitalized. No cases have been reported in Illinois.

Consumers should not use these products (see list below) even if they do not look or smell spoiled. Consumers with these products should dispose of them by double bagging in plastic bags that are tightly closed before being placed in a trash receptacle for non-recyclable trash outside of the home, according to the Food and Drug Administration. Additional instructions for safe disposal can be found at www.cdc.gov/botulism/botulism_faq.htm.

Consumers with any questions should visit Castleberry's Web site (www.castleberrys.com). A toll-free hotline is also available for consumer questions at 1-800-203-4412 or 1-888-203-8446.

Botulism can cause the following symptoms: general weakness, dizziness, double vision and trouble with speaking or swallowing. Difficulty in breathing, weakness of other muscles, abdominal distension and constipation may also be common symptoms.

There have been no reported illnesses linked to Natural Balance canned pet food, but Castleberry's recommends that all these products be discarded. While botulism can affect some pets, dogs and cats are inherently resistant. The disease has only been seen occasionally in dogs and has not been reported in cats. Ferrets are highly susceptible to botulinum toxin. The incubation period can be two hours to two weeks; in most cases, the symptoms appear after 12 to 24 hours. Botulism is characterized by progressive motor paralysis. Typical clinical signs may include muscle paralysis, difficulty breathing, chewing and swallowing, visual disturbances and generalized weakness may also occur. Death usually results from paralysis of the respiratory or cardiac muscles. Pet owners who have used these products and whose pets have these symptoms should contact their veterinarian immediately.

The recall originally announced on July 18 affected only 10 products with 'best by' dates from APR30 2009 through MAY22 2009. The extended recall now includes the following canned products in the following sizes with all 'best by' and code dates:
